

The Universidad Tecnológica de La Habana “José Antonio Echeverría”, Cujae is the main University in the field of technical sciences and Architecture. As part of the activities carried out to commemorate Cujae’s Fifty-Four Anniversary, we would like to invite the professional, scientific and academic community to the 20th SCIENTIFIC CONVENTION ON ENGINEERING AND ARCHITECTURE (20th CCIA) that will be held from November 30th to December 4rd , 2020 in Havana City.

With the slogan “Engineering and Architecture for a Sustainable Future”, the aims of the convention are to make possible the academic and professional community exchange of experiences and ideas regarding the sustainable development in the contemporary society taking into account the results of researching on outstanding topics concerning scientific, technological, pedagogical and managerial development of engineering and architecture.

The Convention will also be the suitable framework to exchange ideas between professionals and academics as well as to establish new paths for the international cooperation among institutions, agencies, organizations and universities which will enable to raise the level of the higher education qualitatively and to link the academic and business sectors. All these interchange will bring about a wider perspective to face the commitments with the society.

Prestigious international and national experts attending the congresses, symposiums and workshops will deliver lectures. Round tables, oral presentations, posters exhibition and videos will be also carried out, as well as pre-convention courses and visits to places of interest.

We would be very pleased to meet you in 2020, at the 20th Scientific Convention on Engineering and Architecture.
