Read the Special Issue on Olympic and world sport: making transnational society? and the accompanying videocast interview

To coincide with the 2012 Olympic Games in London, The British Journal of Sociology has published a Special Issue on the subject of world sport. Edited by Richard Giulianotti and Susan Brownell, the special issue features six world-renowned social scientists writing about global football, Olympic Games, and the FIFA World Cup, ranging across Canada, the UK, Australia, China and South Africa. The contributors show that sport and sport mega-events are playing a crucial role in the making of transnational society because they draw increasing numbers of actors into a transnational web of connections, and general powerful fantasies of global unity and social order among the world audience. At the same time, the expansion of neoliberal policies and global “best practices” in security and policing has provoked oppositional civil society movements and conflicts over post-event “legacies”. The special issue will be valuable to readers interested in civil society, globalization, popular culture, and urban security, as well as those interested in the global nature of today’s sports.

Introduction

Olympic and world sport: making transnational society?
Richard Giulianotti and Susan Brownell

Research articles

Mapping the global football field: a sociological model of transnational forces within the world game
Richard Giulianotti and Roland Robertson

Planning for the worst: risk, uncertainty and the Olympic Games
Philip Boyle and Kevin D. Haggerty

The regeneration games: purity and security in the Olympic city
Pete Fussey, Jon Coaffee, Gary Armstrong and Dick Hobbs

The bid, the lead-up, the event and the legacy: global cultural politics and hosting the Olympics
David Rowe

Human rights and the Beijing Olympics: imagined global community and the transnational public sphere
Susan Brownell

“Our struggles are bigger than the World Cup”: civic activism, state-society relations and the socio-political legacies of the 2010 FIFA World Cup
Scarlett Cornelissen
Plus – Watching Football

Football’s Coming Home? Digital reterritorialization, contradictions in the transnational coverage of sport and the sociology of alternative football broadcasts
Matthew David and Peter Millward

Fans, homophobia and masculinities in association football: evidence of a more inclusive environment
Ellis Cashmore and Jamie Cleland

To watch the videocast, simply click on the image below.

Richard Wright - Editor in Chief of the BJS talks to Susan Brownell, Professor of Anthropology at the University of Missouri St Louis.

To receive automatic table of content alerts as soon as this issue is published, please visit www.wileyonlinelibrary.com/journal/bjos and click on Get New Content Alerts in the top left hand menu.

---

Attending the American Sociological Association conference in August? Come along to the 2012 BJS ASA Annual Meeting Reception

Professor John Torpey will be giving a talk at the BJS ASA Reception on Religion, Politics, and Utopia Today on Saturday 18th August, 8.00p.m. - 10.00p.m. in the Mineral E meeting room.

---

2012 BJS Public Lecture
At this year’s BJS Public Lecture, Todd Gitlin will be talking on the topic Occupy’s Predicament – Occupy wants to be both a way of life for militants and the heart of a reform movement. Can these two vectors cohabit?

Read the 2011 BJS Public Lecture article – Citizenship, immigration, and the European Social Project: rights and obligations of individuality by Yasemin Nuhoğlu Soysal

Read The BJS 60th Anniversary Issue – The BJS Shaping Sociology Over 60 Years
About The British Journal of Sociology
Published by Wiley-Blackwell on behalf of the London School of Economics and Political Science
Editor in Chief: Richard Wright

For almost 60 years The British Journal of Sociology has represented the mainstream of sociological thinking and research. Consistently ranked highly by the ISI in Sociology, this prestigious international journal publishes sociological scholarship of the highest quality on all aspects of the discipline by academics from all over the world. The British Journal of Sociology is distinguished by the commitment to excellence and scholarship one associates with its home at the London School of Economics and Political Science.