

Great tenure-track position opening at UC Davis for people with expertise in environmental policy and environmental justice:

FACULTY POSITION ANNOUNCEMENT

Assistant Professor of Environmental Policy

Position Description

The University of California at Davis is pleased to announce the recruitment for a tenure-track faculty position in environmental policy with an emphasis on environmental justice. The successful candidate will join the Department of Environmental Science and Policy in the College of Agricultural and Environmental Sciences at the rank of Assistant Professor. Criteria for appointment include: a Ph.D. or equivalent in political science, public policy, public administration, urban planning, geography, economics, sociology, anthropology, ecology, law, or a related field, a record of excellence in scholarly research using quantitative methods, and demonstrable potential to establish a competitively-funded research program. The appointee will be responsible for teaching a new undergraduate course in environmental justice and 1.5 other quarter-length courses in environmental policy at the undergraduate or graduate level, with specific course assignments made based on qualifications and department need. The appointee will be actively involved in undergraduate advising, curricular development, and department and university service. The appointee is also expected to guide and mentor graduate students and participate in research and outreach/engagement programs consistent with the mission of the California Agricultural Experiment Station.

Applicants should submit materials via the following website:

<https://recruit.ucdavis.edu>. Additional inquiries can be directed to Dr. Susan Handy, Recruitment Advisory Committee Chair, at slh...@ucdavis.edu. The position will remain open until filled but to ensure consideration, applications should be received by 12/1/19.

UC Davis is an affirmative action/equal employment opportunity employer and is dedicated to recruiting a diverse faculty community. We welcome all qualified applicants to apply, including women, minorities, veterans, and individuals with disabilities.
